

PREPARED FOR

Aesthetica Veda Clinic

Fast to answer. Slow to close.

We tested Aesthetica Veda's WhatsApp enquiry flow last week. What happened after the first reply says less about one enquiry, and more about what happens right after a patient hears the fee.

OBSERVED – WHATSAPP ENQUIRY FLOW

- +29 MIN

FIRST REPLY, HUMAN

The message was answered in about 29 minutes — a reasonable, human first response.
- |

FEE REQUESTED NEXT
- +13.5 HRS

FEE DETAILS SHARED

The fee details came back almost 13.5 hours after that first reply.
- |

BOOKING-AVAILABILITY QUESTION FOLLOWED
- UNANSWERED

BOOKING AVAILABILITY

A follow-up question about booking availability was never answered.

This was a real message sent to the clinic's own WhatsApp number, not a guess — a separate enquiry sent to Instagram at the same time got no response at all.

A 29-minute first reply proves someone's watching the phone. What happens next — a 13.5-hour wait for the fee, then a booking question that never gets answered — falls in the exact window where a patient goes from interested to comparing, and right now there's no way to tell how often it plays out the same way.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Aesthetica Veda runs four concurrent Meta ad campaigns across skin, hair, dental, and plastic surgery, all three locations, all routing straight to WhatsApp — the exact flow this test ran through. That's a wide spread of decisions, from a single laser session to a much longer plastic-surgery choice, and the fee stage is where most of them start being compared against another clinic. Nobody complains at that stage. The patient just goes quiet.

CONFIRMED FROM OUTSIDE

- ✓ Aesthetica Veda runs 4 concurrent Meta ad campaigns spanning skin, hair, dental, and plastic surgery, all routing to WhatsApp.
- ✓ WhatsApp's first reply came in a reasonable ~29 minutes; the fee details that followed took closer to 13.5 hours, and a booking-availability question after that was never answered.
- ✓ Reviews describe the same shape at a later stage — patients who paid for multi-session packages saying the clinic never called back to schedule the next visit.

CAN'T CONFIRM WITHOUT YOUR DATA

- Whether the 13.5-hour fee delay and the unanswered booking question happen on a slow evening, or most evenings.
- Whether the enquiries that go quiet right after the fee is shared are the same patients later showing up in reviews describing the same gap on the scheduling side.

WHAT WE'D CHECK FIRST, IF WE HAD ACCESS

- How many WhatsApp enquiries get a fee shared each week, and how many of those actually book — versus going quiet at that exact step.
- Whether the same handoff gap stalling new enquiries after the fee is shared is the one later stalling returning patients waiting on their next session.

What we're not saying: the ~29-minute first reply is genuinely fast — faster than most clinics we've tested. This isn't about the team being slow or not caring. This is only about what happens in the hours between the fee going out and someone actually booking, and whether that gap is costing bookings nobody's tracking.

This isn't unique to Aesthetica Veda — most clinics that reply fast assume the hard part is over once the fee is out. The real question isn't whether this one enquiry booked; it's how many patients, across three locations and four specialties, hear the fee and quietly check elsewhere before anyone follows up again.

A full audit — mapping exactly where enquiries go quiet after the fee is shared — takes about 30 minutes, at no cost to the clinic.

