

A Revenue Diagnostic for AvatarLuxe

We checked how many public reviews AvatarLuxe has collected since opening in 2023. What that number says isn't about patient satisfaction — it's about whether anything asks for it, consistently.

OBSERVED — GOOGLE REVIEW HISTORY

2023

Year AvatarLuxe opened, per its Google Business listing.

TWO LOCATIONS. PAID ADS RUNNING THE WHOLE TIME.

~280 reviews, checked Jul 18, 2026

Total Google reviews on record today, across both locations combined.

These are Google's own listed numbers, pulled directly from Maps — not an estimate.

For a clinic three years into paid acquisition across two locations, that's a small number. It doesn't necessarily say anything about how patients feel — it says there's no way to know yet whether asking for a review happens every time, or only when someone remembers to.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Hair transplant and plastic surgery patients rarely decide from one clinic's word alone — they compare, and public reviews are often what tips a close decision. A thin review count doesn't just under-represent AvatarLuxe's results; it quietly hands that comparison to whichever competitor's recent patients were asked, and AvatarLuxe's weren't.

CONFIRMED FROM OUTSIDE

- ✓ AvatarLuxe is running active paid ads on Meta — hair transplant, plastic surgery, laser — with several creatives live at once, so enquiries have been arriving steadily.
- ✓ Its Google listing shows roughly 280 reviews across both locations combined, three years after opening — checked directly on Maps, not estimated.

CAN'T CONFIRM WITHOUT YOUR DATA

- Whether asking for a review is a built-in step after treatment, or something that happens only when someone remembers to.
- How many patients from the last three years were happy with their results but were simply never asked.

WHAT WE'D CHECK FIRST, IF WE HAD ACCESS

- Whether a review request is a scripted part of the post-treatment process, or left to individual staff.
- Whether review volume differs between Koramangala and Whitefield — a gap between locations usually points to a process issue, not a patient one.

WHAT WE'RE NOT SAYING

This isn't about the quality of care at AvatarLuxe — the outcomes and doctor communication patients do talk about are consistently strong. It's not about buying reviews or gaming the count either. This is only about whether something asks every patient, every time, or whether it's left to chance amid the day-to-day.

The real question isn't whether AvatarLuxe deserves more than 280 reviews — it's how many happy patients over the last three years were simply never asked. Worth finding out together?
